To the Don Diego Scholarship Foundation:

I am writing this letter on behalf of Pauldean Gevarges, whom I have had the pleasure of knowing for the past four years. He is a senior in my Introduction to Calculus class this year, he hosts a Stock Club in my classroom at lunch, and he used to run cross-country and track for me in previous years. I am pleased to highly recommend Pauldean as a bright, diligent, hard-working, and kind student.

Pauldean possesses many academic strengths that I believe make him stand out amongst his peers. He works hard in all that he does and completes all assignments on time. He has over 100% completion in homework for the year because he does all that is asked of him and more. He strives for the best in every assessment that he takes. Pauldean is always engaged in class, paying attention, participating in class discussions, and asking questions. He is typically quick to find the solution to math problems and is willing to share his work with others. Pauldean is a wonderful asset to his peers, as he is always willing to help students who do not understand. I believe this makes him a strong student, but more importantly, a genuine and caring human being. He listens well and is respectful of others. For these reasons, Pauldean works very well both independently and in groups. I have seen him socialize with a variety of students, athletes, and peers over the years, and he seems to get along extremely well with everyone he meets. Pauldean has a very likable, kind personality and is truly a joyful presence both in class or out on the track. He is also wise and mature beyond his years, and he utilizes this skillset not only in class, but in the real world as well - as his Stock Club advisor, I can say that his knowledge of the stock market and early investing are very impressive indeed.

Overall, Pauldean is an outstanding human being. I am confident that he will overcome any challenge that comes across his path because he is independent, smart, and determined. As his math teacher, I can attest to the fact that he is an excellent problem-solver and critical thinker.

I highly recommend Pauldean Gevarges without hesitation. Should you have any questions, feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,
